ahh night watch... fond memories at ONI, running through the empty halls to get a Fuze just in time to see predator feed of hajjis getting vaporized in a truck.
Good times. Had to go to FPCON Delta a couple times not because of the enemy... but because of gang violence in Suttland "Shootland" Maryland. Aren't minorities grand?

9. On September 11, personnel at the NORAD operations center in Cheyenne Mountain, Colorado, were participating in the training exercise Vigilant Guardian, which has been described as a "full-blown nuclear war" exercise.Immediately following the false flag attacks, installations around the world were placed on the highest state of alert, known as Force Protection Condition Delta (FPCON Delta). Soon after that, the defense readiness condition was raised to Defcon 3, the highest level since 1973.
10. News of the increased defense readiness condition was soon communicated within NORAD, and Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld notified President Bush of the raised threat level.
11. The military stayed at Defcon 3 until September 14, when the defense readiness condition was lowered one notch, to Defcon 4.4At Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana, according to journalists Eric Schmitt and Thom Shanker, air crews taking part in the exercise were "pulling nuclear bombs and missiles out of their heavily guarded storage sites and loading them aboard B-52s" on the morning of September 11. Real, live nuclear weapons were being used, but "their triggers were not armed."

It's a PRP (Nuke) base. So like half of the base are probably Security Forces in order to properly staff silo security. I'd estimate that since it's a sort of small nuke base, they probably have 120-200 Security Forces folks there? I worked at the larger missile fields, so I'm not sure how many they have staffed at Incirlik.

They've been in FPCON Delta for some time though, so they probably have all their defensive positions set up and crew served weapons deployed.

Former AF security forces nukefag here, the Turkroaches will need more shit if they want to be effective.

We launch offensive sorties to Afghanistan from Incirlik, so we have air assets there if we need air superiority.

This nuke base probably has hundreds of Security Forces folks there who are drilled for exactly this sort of thing, with prepared defensive positions. They've been on FPCON Delta ever since the coup, so they've had time to get seriously dug in and to prepare tons of crew served weapons.

Even if the whole base were overrun, the turkroaches can't get to the nukes. They are buried underground in armored silos, and the only way in is to use two-person authentication to enter the first massive vault door to the silo. Then you need authentication to use the elevator to go down to where the missileers are, where there are more doors.

These silos are made to be able to resist a direct nuclear strike themselves, the Turks don't have anything that can get in there before we send more forces to take it back.

>Impossible to sweep under the rug
Its an established fact, not rumor, that Turkey has cut power to the base and is not allowing anyone to enter or leave. It's also widely reported that the base was used to support the pro-coup operations yesterday. And it's also a fact that Erdogan said if the US wants Turkey to cooperate they have to hand over Gulen, which the US does not want to do. Call the situation whatever you want, but these are the facts.

As to why you haven't been hearing much of this on the MSN networks, keep in mind that Turkey essentially controls the media right now and determines what is reported and what makes in into international news. In addition, Ancirlik airbase has been on FPCON Delta since the coup began, which is the highest level of force protection readiness in which the base prepares for an imminent attack. Under these conditions, opsec is of the highest priority and base commanders would not share details of the situation with the media.

FPCON DELTA describes a situation when a terrorist attack is taking place or has just occurred in the immediate area. FPCON Delta usually occurs only in the areas that are most vulnerable to or have been attacked. One notable example of a general FPCON Delta was directly following the September 11, 2001 attacks, when all military installations were placed at FPCON Delta and restricted to only military personnel.

#Turkey, amid coup reports, US-Turkish air base in Incirlik, nearby bases, order Force Protection Condition Delta, halts missions. @NBCNews

Incirlik Air Base has a U.S. Air Force complement of about five thousand airmen, with several hundred airmen from the Royal Air Force and Turkish Air Force also present, as of late 2002. The primary unit stationed at Incirlik Air Base is the 39th Air Base Wing (39 ABW) of the U.S. Air Force. Incirlik Air Base has one 3,048 m (10,000 ft)-long runway, located among about 57 hardened aircraft shelters. The base is one of six NATO sites in Europe which hold tactical nuclear weapons.

One notable example of a general FPCON Delta was directly following the September 11, 2001 attacks, when all military installations were placed at FPCON Delta and restricted to only military personnel. Force Protection Level I Antiterrorism Training defines FPCON Delta as: FPCON Delta applies when a terrorist attack has occurred or when intelligence indicates imminent terrorist action against a specific location. FPCON Delta is normally declared as a localized warning. The installation moves to a high state of alert, and mandatory security measures are implemented. Commanders are also authorized and encouraged to supplement mandatory security measures. FPCON Delta may cause delayed or canceled mission activities. You can expect delays and interruptions to daily routines.

im ex military, the general public thinks the military is some all knowing and invincible beast.
we would have these discussions alot, how many would defect, what bases would fall, how we cant maintain a FPCON delta scenario indefinitely, how easy it is to make arms/explosives.
the second revolution will be fought much like the first, guerilla tactics vs a giant police state.
Afghan and Iraq taught us the folly of battling in occupied territory vs "dumb farmers", look where we are now.
hell ISIS uses retarded apps to subvert the best NSA tier shit we have to fight, the best response to high tech is low tech, my $50 scrap metal IED trumps your $5mill MRAP.
